DUNNE & CRESCENZI

Dunne & Crescenzi is an award-winning Italian restaurant that serves up the best of Italy in a vibrant and welcoming atmosphere. Eileen Dunne and Stefano Crescenzi are passionate about bringing the best of Italy to Ireland, pairing Italian artisan ingredients with local produce in support of Irish farmers. They also offer a carefully curated wine list with more than 200 labels from all over Italy.

Their passion for Italian food, wine and culture is apparent in every aspect of the restaurant, from the extensive wine list, lively ambience, and warm, typically Italian greeting from staff as you arrive. The restaurant achieves effortlessly laid-back dining, while also maintaining impeccable attention to detail.

Boasting a number of restaurants throughout Dublin, including L'Officina, which also has a branch in Kildare Retail Village, the beating heart of the group remains the iconic and much-loved Dunne & Crescenzi in South Frederick Street. Pay a visit to experience for yourself the welcoming atmosphere and taste the food that, according to food writer Tom Doorley, "changed the way the Irish eat".

MASONS RESTAURANT BAR

Masons is located on the ground floor of Manchester Hall, the former Freemasons Hall, which underwent a multimillion pound redevelopment in November 2017. The restaurant and bar boasts a multitude of different dining settings under one roof, catering for a plethora of requirements – from breakfast planning meetings, business lunches or enjoying a romantic evening meal. Local produce is given a worldly twist, and chefs cook some of the finest ingredients from across the British Isles, with a focus firmly on provenance and terroir. A taste of the exotic, that is both familiar and original in execution...
